BIOGRAPHICAL SUMMARY
LIFE WORK: SAFETY FOR THE GENERAL PUBLIC

Elizabeth is also owner of FGC and its division, Workplace Human Relations, whose business it is to "maximize individual and organizational performance" through professional services, client training, resources and products, marketing expertise, and speaking engagements. She is passionate about preventing and reducing substance abuse by training and equipping professionals for performing drug and alcohol testing, speaking to businesses and groups about use, misuse, abuse and addiction, and training supervisors to recognize signs and symptoms of substance use in workers.

Elizabeth L. Auppl has worked with the chiropractic profession since 1986 to advance chiropractic presence and involvement in business and industry throughout the United States and beyond the national borders.

Since 1986, Elizabeth has been the Executive Director of the International Academy of Chiropractic Occupational Health Consultants (IACOHC), as well as a member of the Board of Directors for the IACOHC.

Elizabeth continues as the Executive Advisor to the American Chiropractic Association's Council on Occupational Health since its inception in 1991.

She is a postgraduate faculty person for Northwestern Health Sciences University (Bloomington, MN) in the Chiropractic Occupational Health & Applied Ergonomics Diplomate program for topics related to socioeconomic impact of substance misuse and abuse, early Return-to-Work (RTW), marketing and occupational safety.

Elizabeth continues to speak at chiropractic events throughout the nation on topics related to the specialty of chiropractic occupational safety and health. She is a published author in numerous professional journals and has authored continuing education material published by Data Trace Publishing for DC Tracts.

A recipient of the Claudius Galen Award (2001) by the Minnesota Chiropractic Association (MCA) and a Lifetime Achievement Award (2006) by the ACA Council on Occupational Health, Elizabeth continues in her life work dedicated to safety of the general public, and towards the growth, education, advancement and excellence of the chiropractic profession in industry.

She is certified by the state of Minnesota as an Emergency Management Director, and has accomplished significant coursework and training in the field of emergency management. She assists her local county by providing training, planning full scale simulation exercises and doing her part to help create a safer, better prepared community.

In giving back for having been given much, Elizabeth continues to serve on the Boards of Directors for the International Academy of Chiropractic Occupational Health Consultants
